

STYLE UP

Happiness is an old idea that has been receiving new attention at a Yale University course as well by a happiness index that awarded Nepal as the happiest nation in the world. Monocle magazine recently contributed to the publication of “Flow Trip” to high light life style contents of the “woke” and “enlightened”. Locally, calls for attention to this essential idea of happiness has resulted in a catwalk rehearsal series of events aboard and off at the LRT train system. The catwalk event immediately developed following and two spin offs away from Canada. The group furthermore distributed a magazine publication to showcase this enormously fun event, and led to some ponderings of following up with a beach party, perhaps in Kelowna, perhaps in California. The notion that each person tunes in to new rhythms and frequencies trace back to the nineteen seventies, with the flower children leading the bulk of the population, in defending peace, a current relevant idea, and promoting free love.

B2B TO COALITION, CALL OPENS

The Architecture Office acknowledges that population increase is correlated with the sudden aggressive motion towards novel developments in the urbanscape of Calgary. It is understood that the gross increase in number is approximately 0.4 million, while the number accounting for movement out of the city may be as large as 0.8 million. Small to mid-size businesses have now had a turnaround rate that stuns existing establishments, while public parks like Olympix Plaza has been dozed over seemingly without all the paperwork in order. The Architecture Office is currently in counsel with other authorities of Calgary, in search of a response effort as related to counter-ing the larger number of grey zone developments and downright unauthorized developments. Notable amongst recent findings is the requirement of the city to discover a new authority in the form of a coalition across entity types, involving government, law and courts, police, architecture and planning offices. The issue being faced by businesses may meet a circumvention against illegal takeovers via the declaration made with foundational documents, such as registration expanded with appended legal forms, court order by a class action suit to defend their existence recognizing longstanding community contributions and participation in the city’s democracy. The coalition to commence will require statements to press as well as to record in Alberta from the entites above cited. Small and middle size measures may emerge through the referral of each case, thus repeated via different unique circumstances, together to become historical cases within the legal court.

CIA CIB

In 2003, Professor Neisser, known associate of several organizations was teaching a course on Intelligence that focused on American history in the development of intelligence circles as well as in social adaptations where the outcome was positive and widespanning. Fast forward to 2023, of Dr Neisser’s students, one proposed via a precis the idea for a new organizational mechanism in the cognitive and intentional distribution and collection of civic intelligence upon the worldly agenda of uplifting the nation. Late last year, after examining local circumstances and events, their requirements for formalized advisory, and periferally, how institutionalization of recommendations based on datasets available from cross the North American continent, the Central Intelligence Agency contacted the student of Dr Neisser to express interest in the concept proposed called Civic Intelligence Bureau. As the class lesson showed, the Central Intelligence Agencu was earlier busy with drawing up standards for operations based on innate and learned abilities to formulate from community resources the essential activities that bring forwrd the best the nation has in store. With the proposal of Civic Intelligence centralized in a networked bureau system, the proposal draws attention to the deep wealth of the nation in its people, their aspirations and dreams as well as their willingness to contribute to an effort to discover a greater future than the past did accomplish. The components for the bureau system rests on several projects that circulate resources and informstion, in a systematic manner, and furthermore generate a resource base from which each state bureau can depend on for troubleshooting and discovery of new contents, products, and services. Of the most intrigue is the idea of the “Beautiful Census Forms”, which layout basic and augmented capacities of existing instiutions, like the Church and the Townhall, in an ideal form, with which local organizations may compare to and aspire through system availabilities for upgrades.

GREEN STILL

The Green Office is still in early nascent form since mid 2022 when the call for its standing as office did begin. The purpose of the Green Office is to reach supervisory authority over further efforts in bringing plant life to blossom across the city. Early agenda includes the monitoring of plant life in the city which has suffered some impact associated with foreign or migrant meddling, such as spraying of pesticides that damage the plant’s life. Last year saw a garden transformed backward in time to a shaggy dump about an out of order storefront in Beltline. The Office found that meddling by unauthorized parties continue to threaten plant life in Calgary.

OPINION: MEDICALLY

Current troubles still with us called COVID-19 actually had its source in China, simply labelled in English “COVID”. The design of the term of “COVID” is of a mysterious origin, as by interpretation of meaning to each letter by the Chinese. It is unknown to the West what nature COVID expresses in China, but many are able to intuit that it is related to the internal actions which are then through convolution become conjunctive with external socially founded disruptions or unrest. It is the opinion of the author that cancer had similar origins, in that the mysterious yet known contents of a foreign type of human beings, who on the other hand are able to adapt and evolve with the expression of internal psychicly asserted actions. Cancer was previously related to the ongoing metastasis of unrecognizable cells, however it came to lay cover to the reception of internal actions.

ADOPTING POLICY

The current decade and the previous decade have seen much in writing in terms of legal frameworks, acts and bills, policies, and so on. The delay to efficient adaption of specific writings remains an issue for the higher intellectual powers who penned such forms. The trouble seems to lie in an absence of processing proceedings, in which the larger documents could be broken down and talent sought to adopt specific clauses to court decisions, medical determinations, media re-circulation, political conventions, et cetera. The availability of the original documents remain a golden trove of treasures and gems in ideas, in sketches, in schemas. Further attnetion here needed.

OPINION: SECURITY WISE

The current needs for security may well be forwarded from everybody, including small to mid size businesses, large businesses in commerce, critical infratructure, and airport. It is unknown and largely unheard of that the government has been aware of the crisis facing every type of entities in terms of security. From businesses the demand has first sounded off as a type of busines takeover that involves in person man to man conflict resolutions, which I call “biz tak-of-errs”, seeing that this is not a legal maneuver and is closer to plain robbery but of larger assets as properties and product lines. The hostility with which many organizations have experienced “conquer” whereby property can be demolished without due paperwork or assets could be destroyed as a blatant destruction of evidence really puts up a serious face as though the civilian grounds were some kind of battle fields where fronts could be detected. As with most pacifist nations, each learning from world war two that conflict best seek bureaucratic or civil resolution, nevertheless discovers too late that the aggressive party has no such memory nor such cultural conventions. Is now a good time to mark memos of each incidence to cabinets so that a city like Calgary could arrange for adequate security around each instances and types of entities suffering advancement too aggressive? The military branch of the population actually numbers in many national backgrounds: in addition to Canadian and American forces, other militaries such as the French, the Singaporean, the Chinese, the Nigerian, have presence in town but cannot organize themselves into a balance to support the adaptation of novel regimen or security to safeguard each populace and each own interests including those interests in comerce and peaceful settlement.

CHALLENGING CRISIS, MED

It has been the case since early settlement that there are less doctors than is required, approximately one doctor to one thousand to ten thousand per town. While the raising of proper curriculum training has expanded the ratio, many in the populaces still deal with the one to several thousand ratio. However, with the coming and passing of news media attention on COVID-19, we see that the orientation of needs from populations has become even more demanding for doctors. The plain difficulty in assuring patients that certain afflictions though damaging are usually passing is of one particular difficulty. However, even more, the questions of how doctors are needed to provide leadership and remedy to massive problem now also gravely lie on top of each doctor’s shoulder. Perhaps fairly glaringly, as COVID draws doctors away from their regular offices into the communities, the hospitals had become short staffed in Calgary. In response, the Alberta Health Services further staff nursing desks perhaps with four times or five times the staff. Due to inexperience, errors continue to occur due to bravado or requirements to keep up appearances. News of doctors succumbing to disease or social entanglements though reaching the hospital, nevertheless means that vulnerabilities in the critical infrastructure remain unexamined. Doctors discover that they are short on answers concerning worldly affairs, suddenly dawning onto patients as relevant and require guidance, and also upon return to work at the hospital, outnumbered by staff who cannot identify doctors from others less credentialed.
