

PITCHING IN

The idea of bootstrapping is often thought to be one notion tantamount to repeated success in America to raise the nation's quality of life up, by scaled leaps and bounds. Currently agenda are being proposed by such as Platform of Fifty, universities, grassroots organizations, et cetera that come with a decidedly larger price tag. So, in the interim period, there is much doubt as to whether these larger agenda have a chance to secure proper funding or better yet, financing. The idea that a citizen can contribute not only tax dollars to local efforts within a greater context in national apropos is a hark back to those decades prior the previous century to build the highway system, or to upgrade residential plumbing. The issue at hand concerns labor hours, which can remarkably be a type of contribution. This having been said, citizen contribution is a method that has the outcome of cooperatives, which if networked via central intelligence in the civic realm, can prove high productivity levels as well as great satisfaction score.

PRACTICALLY

The notion of Intelligence requires advancement in popular media communication. Just like science was popularized by the likes of Carl Sagan, intelligence as an idea as relevant to general upgrading and geopolitical beaconing guidepost ought to receive sharp and focused attention. Beside the proposal of Civic Intelligence Bureau, one can imagine books and tv shows that show how to generate civic intelligence and how to formulate analysis that forward the improvement of the quality of life. Thinking with the goal of intelligence in mind is to apply methodologies of problem solving, learning, and troubleshooting together onto a stated problem as drawn from careful observation. Currently, media leans towards entertainment and are not reliably expressing itself as a important conduit to general improvement.

LARGE FORMAT BUDGETING

The issue of budget structuring may be akin to fee structure design in banking. The idea of Civic Intelligence Burea has met an obstacle that can be said to be grounded in the abstract issue of scaling. Now, the raising of a bureau in a national context denotes a system of bureau, eventually realized upon much activity already transpired. The bottom up activity includes communication and mutual reference, but also problem solving and novel design. The overarching goal of "uplifting the nation" seems at first lofty, but when the bottom line emerges, it is obvious that some problems have been solved in some places but not all places, therefore intelligence could flow from one area to another. In the initial design documents, there are certain areas of development, such as outer space sustainable program, arts and music festivals, maintenance of infrastructure, and so on, which can be found as in being held in common and so to a horizontal playing field. The thought that each agenda may receive attention from all Americans everywhere inside her borders mean that declarations and involvements may be very similar no matter which state or county citizens reside. To return to the point of financing via budget planning, it is obvious that certain portion of the financing may come from surpluses in different places, but also as under a national agenda, from additional funds and also talent and resources that flow from the center outwrd. Current obstacles include the difficulty of envisioning large scale collective motion under singular agenda. The place for a proper enquiry ought to start in streamlined efficient program with capacity to fund demonstrative early prototypal programs which could show the way to mounting increasingly more ambitious programs at each geopolitlital zone. The structuring of the budget will prove to be a challenging design problem, which will require dialogue between state actors but also smaller actors like municipality and comercial entities.

ISSUES OF GUARD FEEL GOOD

Even as early as the early part of the first decade of this century, observers have noted that migrational patterns of people across the world have seen influx tendencies into our nation in the United States of America. Such gross increase to populace, being without the supervision of office like that of Immigration slides the probability scale of larger number of criminal instances and other sociological problems towards more likely. One solution in preparation was called the Military Food Reserve, which is a system of holding and increasing the supply of food on a soft network of stors and warehouses that can respond to any emergencies that are raised at any particular time. This design also proposed the supply chain. Design documents are understood to be delayed.

The broadcast of presidential and national affairs have now a new terminology concerning the external perception over events which are framed by production quality; this is called "optiks". Meanwhile, efforts by Platform of Fifty continue to be seen as close to a bottom up approach that centralizes its capacities in real world engagements, or presiding over smaller affairs that take a hands on approach. The issue of optiks ought to be applied by this group, numbering more than five thousand strong, to seek productive framing as a singular collective that is advancing real world goals, but this framed well within television's optiks, could then show leadership over how different sectors and zones, and also industries, solve their own problems, via dialog.

ORIENTATION

The Platform of Fifty now has since the moment of conception over two decades old. By recent estimate, the circle of men and women attending to this call to issue authority via presiding with great ethics and morale, in the spirit of patriotism, has grown to more than five thousand strong. One senior advisor, former astronaut of the Apollo program, has now been to attend to many voices that met with him out of advocacy and concern about the future of this campaign. He notes to the author that what is preventing this political party from gaining traction and momentum is due to the absence of internal communication. The efforts from each individual seems minor and even grassroots, therefore, internal affairs to gain strength and momentum will require the set up of internal communication. The current examination reveals that this advisor is correct in his determination. While nation building seems a vast call, the exchanges over large labels may prove to add momentum to the name.

INFOECO

The big question nowadays sometimes concern whether a geopolitical region is with intertwining relation to the world of progress. New democracy, new economics, new mechanisms for communication all point towards the unasked question of "Are we keeping up?" The recent month has seen bank founders of smaller banks hush-hush on the development of information ecologies that would bolster growth in economics as custom tailoring via mass action, here duly informed by news and bulletins, of bank clients. The idea to promote and develop application that is at basis a access panel is grounded in the question of content generation and content curation. Locally, it is projected that were such a access panel available for commerce news, clients will develop greater appreciation for business success.

HUMAN AGENCY POTENTIAL

Earlier as the adjacent article indicates, there is a necessity to reach communicability between ideals and dream, and the sphere of practical affairs, for the Platform of Fifty. In a twist of advancing events, the early call for the Platform of Fifty coincided with a letter writing by Ati to attempt to reach some denominative grounds by focusing on the topic of human agency as citizen and the spanning problems that dot our nation. The letter came out last year before March on her blogchannel called <http://artelier2.blogspot.com> to little fanfare. In the letter, the author attempted to show that despite the winding and convoluntary currents through the present era, understood to be more distributed and overloaded with many affairs, some fairly petty, the author notes the importance of seeing that no matter how large a motion, they are still drawn up by human intention, and therefore may be subjected to the patriotic human intellect. The goal of nation building, according to the letter numbering more than ten pages, is to effect improvements to all different aspects of citizen life. That all areas are subjectible to review and open to adjustment, was a central theme in the letter. In the second half of the letter, the author even bends the light upon citizenry, to ask whether and how armed defense is too a part and component to the livelihood to the statehood. Questions abound in different places, with some propositional statements aided by descriptions, but ultimately ask in a fanning way what is to be thought over a particular issue. At the date of publication, the author shying by that the letter was received well from those around her, offered that even if the propositions prove to be of a different opinion or disposition, the letters may yet pose a "word search" - meaning thst certain larger apropos may be revealed in an identification of key terms. This is seen to be an invitation for others to contribute their thoughts and ideas under the same umbrella of state relevant notions.

ORDER FROM ABOVE

The new millenium has now been ushered in to much celebration but also to certain measure of calamity in some places. Of great question to us who have seen massive influxes and following disruptions to our home areas is when will the parties and migrations settle down. One faithful who had a near death experience reported to a few the surprising message she now bears. The command is of a single word: "HOME". The order of "HOME" coincided in the same period with two miraculous events: one was a bleeding avocado, and the other was a stick molded to look like a pen that fell from the sky. It is considerable that these experiences all occurred over a six month period, along with other minor incidences like the transformation of a ring and a necklace, properly called transmutation, to metals more precious. In collecting these special memories, the faithful recalls that a greater agenda is to be understood from the single word order, heard as a thundering voice in the sky, and is dedicating her time to writing a thirty part treatment that initially poses the disruption by migration to be tolerated by measure and cognition, which then in later parts of the writing, become a defense and celebration of the idea of home, homesteading, industry, dream, and so on. The mystery not missed by the faithful, she now occasionally explains that her work in architecture has benefited from the extraordinary experiences, in that a baseline for what is possible were drawn from her own faithful experiences; therefore, what larger affects upon the city she helped build could lie in context of the base line of no less than three miracles and related events in recent years.
